CENTER FOR CONTINUING AND OUTREACH EDUCATION

Health eDialog eNewsletter
Volume 1, Issue 1

Welcome to UMDNJ CCOE's monthly e-newsletter: Health eDialog. We are pleased that you are a subscriber to our email update list, and are excited about this opportunity to connect with you. We encourage you to join our community of learners, dedicated to providing quality education and improving patient care.

As the largest public health sciences university in the country, UMDNJ provides a resource-rich foundation for Continuing Education excellence. With eight schools and numerous institutes and centers across five regional campuses throughout New Jersey, the University provides education with a diversity of approach, culture and expertise that is unmatched in the medical education field.

We hope by opening up lines of communication – we will better serve your educational interests and help you meet your professional objectives. Medical education continues to evolve, and CCOE is committed to keeping our learners ahead of the proverbial curve by informing them of the state of the industry, and how changes and trends will affect their continuing education needs.

CCOE excels in compliance consultation, meeting planning, publishing and e-learning development; we hope to guide our learners through the shifting environment of Continuing Education, as well as inform you of our latest training initiatives and schedule of programs. Our goal is to offer a forum for relevant information that will be essential in your own educational planning and professional development needs.

Since effective communications is always a two-way street, we invite any suggestions, comments or concerns (also, please see our section to the right on social media connections). We look forward to hearing from you and developing a health(e)dialog!

As part of our specialized HIV/AIDS education division, CCOE has a unique

Re-launch of the Metabolic Pulse website

CCOE has recently re-launched our educational-based infosite: Metabolic Pulse. The Metabolic Pulse website is an online resource for diabetes healthcare providers, developed to provide a forum for information, discussion and learning. As part of this initiative, this website offers CME and non-CME activities, with a unique focus on Performance Improvement programming.

Please stay tuned for more information regarding this site, as well as other Performance Improvement initiatives from CCOE. To check out the site, please visit:

Social Media Connection: A Community of (Web 2.0) Learners

Let CCOE be a part of your daily flow of Web 2.0 information. With a simple connection to our new social media sites, you can have a quick reference to all of our announcements about CME program known as the HIV/AIDS Medical Update Series. This educational series consists of on-site presentations that have been developed to provide timely training and expert advice to HIV/AIDS health care professionals throughout the State of New Jersey. These 1-hour, customized training programs are fully accredited for both physicians and nurses, and sponsored by the American Academy of CME, Inc. Funding for this initiative comes from a grant from the New Jersey Department of Health and Senior Services, Division of HIV/AIDS Services.

We have many relevant topics available that can be tailored to the needs of your staff. The best part is that we do the training at your location - and there is no fee to host to offer this program, and it is tuition free for all attendees. In order for us to make a "house call", you will have to make the first step. For information on choosing a topic and setting up an HIV/AIDS Medical Update Series customized training event, please contact Michelle Thompson at ccthomps@umdnj.edu or 973-972-1293.

education and educational events. In addition, you will be able to count yourself among our greater community of learners - professionals and practitioners like yourself that are involved with health care in New Jersey and beyond... This is a great vehicle for the exchanging ideas and networking with colleagues. Join us by clicking on any of the links below, or by clicking in the icons on the CCOE website.

FYI - Fast CME Fact...

As an academic institution, UMDNJ is bound by the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act that governs most institutions of higher education, ensuring that your CME attendee records will never be released to any commercial interest. Only official requests from licensing boards or other auditing organizations will be honored, and even those must usually be approved or agreed to by the participant.
